III Teaching activities

3.1. Subjects

I was together with my colleagues A. Arrak, V. Trasberg, U. Soots and A. Viiol first in Estonia who started to teach modern economics (instead of soviet political economy) in 1989/1990 Fall Semester. As result of these lecture series we produced several textbooks for undergraduate and secondary school level. In 1992-1996 we also were involved to school teachers' training activities in cooperation with American National Economics Education Association.

Today I am teaching mostly three-four types of topics like Basic Economics, Macroeconomics, Labour economics and issues of general macroeconomic environment in Estonia (last for MBA and other open university courses)

Recently I have been responsible also for methodology course for PhD students, EU labour market and labour policy course etc.

3.2 Teaching load by semesters (16 weeks), including both regular and open university (weekend teaching) classes, since 2000 Fall Semester has been on average 130 hours per semester

3.3 Participation in defence committes and intake committes
